Listening transcript — Part B

Martin: Good morning, everyone. As new staff, you'll write a lot of emails to customers, so here are our company's email guidelines.

Martin: First, the subject line. Keep it short, no more than eight words, and make it clear. Second, only send an email to the people who really need it. If someone only needs to know about something, put them in copy, but please don't copy the whole department.

Martin: Third, every email must end with the company signature, which includes your name, your job title and your phone number. You'll find the signature in the settings. Please don't change the colours or add pictures to it. Fourth, always use the spell checker before you press Send. Customers notice mistakes, and a message with mistakes looks careless.

Martin: Finally, we reply to customer emails within one day. If you need more time to find an answer, send a short reply that says when you'll write again. And one last thing: never share a customer's personal information by email. Are there any questions?

Speaking

2.5 points

Các bài mẫu là gợi ý tham khảo, không phải đáp án đúng duy nhất. Part 1 có câu hỏi mở và không có bài mẫu trong bộ dữ liệu.

Part 1 (S1)

Answer the three questions. Speak for 30–45 seconds for each question.

Suggested time: 45 seconds per question.

1. What do you usually do online in a normal week, and what are you doing differently this month? Use the present simple and the present continuous.

2. What happens if you click on a link in an email from someone you don't know? Use zero or first conditional sentences (If you…, … / If you…, … will…).

3. Describe a website or app that you use often. Use relative clauses with which, that or who (It's an app which…).

Part 2 (S2)

Explain network concepts. Speak for 1–1.5 minutes.

Suggested time: 90 seconds.

A new student at your college does not understand some network words. Explain what each word in the cues means and give an example from your college or home. Use relative clauses with which, that or who (A server is a computer which…).

- server
- wi-fi
- LAN
- VPN
- network technician

Required language: Relative clauses with which or that for things: A LAN is a network which…; Relative clauses with who or that for people: A network technician is a person who….

Sample response

> Let me explain these words. A server is a computer which provides services to other computers on a network. For example, our college has a server that stores all the students' work. Wi-fi is a way of connecting devices to a network which uses radio signals instead of cables. I use the wi-fi in the library every day. A LAN is a network that connects computers inside one building or organisation, like the computers in our labs. A VPN is a secure network which lets people outside the office use the company's network through the internet. My father uses one when he works from home. Finally, a network technician is a person who looks after the network and fixes it when there is a problem.

Part 3 (S3)

Deal with the situation. Speak for 1–1.5 minutes.

Suggested time: 90 seconds.

You work at a small hotel. Your manager is not sure whether to give the maintenance and cleaning staff smartphones with a work app. Explain the benefits and one possible problem. Use first conditional sentences (If we give…, staff will…) and at least one zero conditional sentence (If a room is…, the app…).

- the app shows which rooms need cleaning / no need to phone reception
- staff take a photo of a broken item / maintenance team sees it immediately
- guests report problems / faster repairs
- possible problem: phones get lost or broken / buy strong cases

Required language: First conditional: If + present simple, will + verb; Zero conditional: If + present simple, present simple.

Sample response

> I think smartphones with a work app are a good idea. If we give the cleaning staff smartphones, they will see which rooms need cleaning, so they won't need to phone reception every time. The app is very simple: if a guest checks out, the room appears on the list automatically. If the maintenance staff have phones, they will also work faster. For example, if a cleaner finds a broken lamp, they will take a photo, and the maintenance team will see it immediately. That means guests will get faster repairs and they will be happier. There is one possible problem. If staff drop the phones, they will break. So if we buy the phones, I think we should also buy strong cases for them.
